A DREAM OF THE FLOWERS

Girls of St. Catherine's Guild of Christ Church Present May Day Cantata at Parish House on Tuesday

The blooming of the May flowers was the seasonal story told by song and dialogue in the charming cantata, "A Dream of the Flowers," presented by the girls of St. Catherine's Guild at Christ church parish house on Tuesday evening.

The gaily daffodil, modest violet, shy artichoke, golden dandelion and many others wove to life as the morning glory sounded the reveille on her pink trumpet assisted by the fairies and their queen. It was all only a dream that came to little Cora and Bessie who had dropped fern seed in their shoes, but a very pretty, charming dream shared by the appreciative audience of children and grown-ups. The third scene closed with the crowning of the May queen and a chorus which united the sweet young voices of fairies and flowers. Young pine trees simulated the wood where the fairies danced, and from under the green boughs rose the flowers at the call of the Queen.

The children enjoyed giving the entertainment and the happy one with which they joined in song and story told much of the good spirit with which they respond to the careful training given them by their leaders.

Between the scenes, there was music by the K-E-Y trio.

MIRACLES OF MEDICINE

Dr. Ernest Harold Baynes Tells of Benefits to Humanity Resulting From Animal Experimentation

The important contributions to medical science resulting from animal experimentation, with the enormous saving of human life, was the point especially emphasized by Dr. Ernest Harold Baynes in an illustrated lecture on "Miracles of Modern Medicine" given under the auspices of the Andover Public Health committee in the November clubhouse last evening.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Claude M. Fuss who said that at present the most important work of the Red Cross was a movement for better public health. To interest a larger group of people, a public meeting was arranged, for which they were so fortunate as to secure as speaker Dr. Baynes of Meriden, N. H., who is well known as a naturalist, ornithologist and author as well as because of his position as field secretary of the Friends of Medical Science.

Holding the position of president of a humane society, he was first approached by representatives of the anti-vivisection society to enlist himself as a worker in that cause. Wishing to be thoroughly informed concerning the real facts, he visited many laboratories all over the United States where such work is carried on, and is now fully convinced that the animals who are the subjects of experimentation are treated with every possible consideration and that the results of such research have made an invaluable contribution to the health and happiness of the human race.

"We are sorry for the twenty-five monkeys who were given infantile paralysis experimentally but if it were your child who as a result of the knowledge obtained was saved from this dread disease you would think it well worth while," said Dr. Baynes.

Among the wonderful benefits of this work are the discovery of anti-toxin which has resulted in the reduction in the number of cases of diphtheria by seventy-five per cent. One horse alone has furnished anti-toxin for two thousand children. Animals used for

The members of the Alpha Phi Chi sorority of the South church were hostesses on Tuesday evening to two hundred mothers and daughters of the parish whom they entertained at supper followed by a sketch called "A Shaw Pageant."

Mrs. Frank T. Carlton, counselor, extended a welcome in behalf of the sorority after which the following menu was served: Fruit cocktail, cold ham, mashed potato, green peas, beet salad, rolls, ice cream with butterscotch sauce, cake and coffee. The tables were lighted with pink candles and streamers of pink and lavender caught with sprays of wisteria decorated the vestries.

The unique entertainment was in charge of its original author and author, Miss Helen Tewksbury. Against a background of old Paisley and Cashmere shawls appeared living pictures varying from the American Indian in her blanket to the dainty Spanish dancer in silk shawl and lace mantilla. Descriptive verses were read by Miss Esther Colby and incidental music was played by Miss Marion Abbott. ## Safeguarding the Farm Against Fire

Prejudice still lingers in the minds of thousands of intelligent farmers against lightning rods. Lack of confidence in the efficacy of the lightning rod is, of course, a survival from the days generations ago when lightning rod agents unloaded worthless equipment upon the farmer. More often than not this equipment proved a hazard in itself; small wonder then that for years afterward American farmers had little faith in lightning rods.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Joseph Schildkraut, whose acting in "Lillom," "Peer Gynt" and "The Pagans" won him large favor among playgoers, will be seen for the third week at the Majestic Theatre, beginning Monday night, May 19, in the play love comedy, "The Highwayman," a play which affords the young actor ample opportunity to exhibit his handsome features and display his zestful flair for comedy.

"The Highwayman" is a sparkling, modern spoken comedy which races along with pinwheels of repartee, skyrockets of amusing situations and a giant cracker of two drama, all exploding at the proper junctures.

Lotus Robb, who made such a big hit in "Rollo's Wild Oat," and "The Green Goddess," occupies the lead opposite the star. Next in importance is Jessie Royce Landis, niece of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis. Others are John Westley, Philip Lord, Corbett Morris, Lester Scharif, Hilda Graham, Theodore Westman, Jr., Gordon Pascale, N. R. Creagan, and others.

"The Highwayman" is the work of Lajos Biro, reaches Boston after 300 consecutive nights in Vienna and long runs in Chicago and Philadelphia. It will be exhibited before New York audiences at an early date. It is under Lester Bryant's direction.

The play was adapted by Gladys Unger who wrote "The Marriage Market," "The Goldfish" and "The Business Widow."

WILBUR THEATRE

Fay Rainer is starred in a new musical play this season at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, starting on the second week beginning Monday, May 19, before its official opening in New York. The name of it is "The Dream Girl," a musical play by Victor Herbert and Rida Johnson Young which has been adapted from the play "The Road to Yesterday" by Walter Wolf, who was in "The Lady in Ermine" company, is the featured member of the supporting company which includes many well-known musical comedy favorites and a chorus of thirty American tourist girls.

The story of "The Dream Girl" takes place in England and concerns the experiences of a group of American girls who have gone to England to study. Elspeth, one of the girls, is introduced to Jack Greterex, an American athlete, at a party which is given at the studio of a young English artist.

At her meeting with Greterex, Elspeth has a feeling that she met him before, and the same feeling is shared by Jack. That night, in a dream, Elspeth stars from her castle to a rude inn in the country. There is a disturbance outside the inn and Greterex, who appears as a knight, comes to her rescue. Later her guardian, Lord Strangeven appears and takes her back to the castle. Strangeven has been a selfish tyrant and means to marry Elspeth because she is an heiress, but at a critical moment Greterex appears and again rescues Elspeth, fighting his way with her out of the castle.

The dances and ensembles have been staged by David Bennett and the play staged by Laura Hope Crews.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

Mrs. Fiske, the delightful artist, is playing at the Plymouth Theatre in "Helena's Boys," a comedy written by Ida Lublenski Ehrlich from a short story by Ida Lublenski Ehrlich. Those who know and love the theatre remember immediately at the mention of Mrs. Fiske's name evenings filled with charm and stimulated with wit, the playwright's sometimes, Mrs. Fiske's always, because as James Whitaker wrote recently in the New York American, "Mrs. Fiske has gone all the way through the territory of her art and come out on the other side, where she has found the artist's final triumph — a familiarity with and a kindly dubious contempt for the muse she once worshipped." It may be folly to attempt to interpret another's phrase but this seems to mean that Mrs. Fiske collaborates with her playwrights and brings to their works an understanding of human nature which equals when it doesn't surpass their own understanding of their characters. Certainly she brings the supreme interpretative gift which makes her audiences enjoy with her the whimsicalities and the bewilderments of the character she portrays. In "Helena's Boys" this character is the mother of two sons, both moderns of the most modern type, and her problem is not so much how to make them see her wisdom as it is to understand and adapt herself to theirs. She accomplishes this, however, with highly diverting results.

"Helena's Boys" requires and has an excellent cast of supporting players. Harrison Grey Fiske has directed the play, which is produced under the management and direction of Charles L. Wagner. The second week begins Monday, May 19.

TREMONT THEATRE

It goes without saying that for a production with the scope and spectacle that Cecil B. DeMille has put into "The Ten Commandments," advisers of every walk and avocation in life have been called in to explain, caution, guide and aid the director. Mr. DeMille has ever been most considerate in his solicitations to obtain the best advice and most expert opinion from the highest vocations directly pertinent to the making of any one of his fifty productions. Especially was this so in the molding and making of "The Ten Commandments" which is now on its tenth week at the Tremont theatre, Boston.

DeMille did not rush in "where Angels fear to tread," without deep thought and wise counsel. He had no half-baked ideas, neither did he base the making of the spectacle on rigid sectarian views, but rather sought out the consensus of scholarly minds. Egyptologists were constantly at his side during the scenes of Pahrash and his court. Reverend Rabbis guided him through the Exodus and the Wilderness, Protestant clergy and the Venerable Roman Catholic Bishop of Central California were the welcome guests and advisers at the making of the climaxes and gave their approval of what was being done.

It was this Catholic spirit that has made the production so unanimously praised from the Pacific to the Atlantic and beyond the Atlantic to the Pavilion Theatre, London, England. There is no sectarianism, no cult, no damning of one and uplifting the other. It is the everyday life of us mortals reaching over a period of thousands of years — both Hebrew and Christian — and has the universal appeal of heart and soul.

There are daily matinees at 2.10 while the evening performances begin promptly at 8.10. A mail order department has been set up in the Tremont Theatre box office where out-of-town folk are cared for in reservations.

ESSEX COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL NOTES

Professor J. C. Graham to Talk to Essex County Poultrymen

All Essex County Poultrymen are invited to attend the next meeting of Essex County Commercial Poultrymen's Association to be held at the Agricultural School, Hathorne, May 20, at 8.30 p. m. There will be a short business meeting after which Professor J. C. Graham, head of the Poultry Department at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, will speak on the "Feeding and Management of the Growing Stock." This subject is particularly important at this time, as the proper care of young stock is foremost in the minds of all poultrymen. Professor Graham is well acquainted with the industry as carried on in all parts of the state. There will also be an opportunity to get information on personal problems.

Professor Graham comes to Essex County at the request of County Agent Bertram Tansman, who is the secretary of the Poultrymen's Association, which is co-operating with the Extension Service in its various activities.

Fruit Division Activities

The delayed dormant spray has been applied to all of our trees, young and old. The young orchard has been plowed and will be harrowed occasionally until mid-summer, when it will be seeded down.

About two thousand raspberry plants have been planted between the pear trees which were set last year. The raspberries will be removed long before the trees need the ground for a feeding area. Five thousand strawberry plants, principally Howard 17 and Abingtons, are being set this week. A new vineyard is being prepared for 125 grapes. These will include the three leading varieties for the county.

Joseph Grotto of Beverly, Armand Poitras of Middleton, George Rippon of Lynn, and George Stickney of Haverhill, all Essex Aggie students, have been retained at the School for summer employment. The boys will be instructed in the best practices for the culture of small and large fruits by Mr. Meigs and Mr. Wood of the School staff.

Homemaking Department Notes

In the Home-making Department, the senior girls are busy during their sewing periods in making their graduation clothing. Not only their dresses but every article of wearing apparel is made at the school, and naturally, it is a most interesting and fascinating piece of school work.

Wednesday, June 4, is the day set for the annual Parents' Day at the Home-making Department of the school. This is the day when the students entertain their parents and friends and invite them to inspect some of the work done during the year.

On May 16 the Seniors and the High School Special class will visit Faneuil Hall Market and go through Arthur E. Dorr's wholesale and retail department. A meat-cutting demonstration has been arranged, and a complete explanation of the various cuts will be given.

In the afternoon, the classes will visit Walter Baker's chocolate factory and be instructed in the many processes involved in the making of the finished cocoa and chocolate products.

"Essex Farmer and Home-Maker"

The May issue of the "Essex Farmer and Home-Maker," a bi-monthly paper, published by this School, has been received from the printer. This issue contains a timely article on spraying, together with a good spray school County orchard. Several other articles of interest to the Essex County home-makers and farmers appear in this issue. A free copy will be sent upon application.

THE BIGGEST SINGLE BUSINESS IN THE WORLD

Every year the United States Postal Service handles 23,000,000,000 articles. Every year the increase in number of articles in the mails is more than a billion. Of the total mail submitted, 12,000,000,000 pieces are letters.

Every year the Postal Service, on an average, delivers 112 letters to every man, woman, and child in the United States. Attch the students entertain their parents and friends and invite them to inspect some of the work done during the year.

Every second of the twenty-four hours of every day there are 389 letters dropped into letter boxes; every minute, 23,334, and every hour 1,400,000.

Nearly 44,000 postmen, members of the greatest single business, daily deliver mail to millions of homes and business houses in American cities.

The farmer is not neglected by the Postal Service. To-day 44,552 rural routes supply mail to 6,504,592 families, or 29,921,123 individuals.

Out West the Postal Service has established a veritable automobile railroad 125 miles long to the fruitful Uintah (Utah) Valley to which no private rail line has penetrated.

On February 25, 1924, the Post Office Department had more than 351,000 in its employ. Besides the 43,677 letter carriers, there are 62,400 clerks, 44,417 rural carriers, 51,393 postmasters, and 21,316 railway postal clerks.

The 51,393 postmasters run as many offices. There is one post office for every 58 square miles of territory. The 351,000 full and part-time postal employees are paid approximately $441,622,517 annually for their services.

Concerning the Bartlett Bookstore

The following letter giving an interesting picture of the place the Bartlett Bookstore at Cornhill held in the educational life of Boston during the last generation is reprinted from The Boston Herald of May 12. To the Editor of The Herald:

The death of Nathaniel Edward Bartlett recalls to all who read books the debt we owe to the educated bookseller who has wide interests. I first knew the familiar bookshop of Messrs. N. J. Bartlett and Co., at 28 Cornhill, in the later eighties, when Mr. N. J. Bartlett (Mr. Nathaniel E. Bartlett's father) was alive. It was then the resort of Harvard students and especially of divinity students and younger clergymen.

Mr. Bartlett, the senior, sat behind his high desk in the corner by the window and greeted us as we entered. I think he knew us all, and always remembered the kind of books which were most alluring to each one of us. He would tell us, perhaps, that Dr. George Gordon had recently been in, and had said bonny words about a certain volume. Or, perhaps, Mr. Chase had just returned from England with boxes filled with rare findings; he had, for instance, a good one volume of the Pickering Coleridge. (Most of us dreamed that some day we might have a whole set of "Pickering Coleridge.")

Not only were the shelves and tables downstairs groaning with books old and new, but there was a floor upstairs to which we were pleasantly invited. Here we would often find the whole library of some well-known clergyman, and we would wonder pathetically if, after we died, our libraries just beginning, and lovingly growing, volume by volume, would be deposited by our heirs on that same long table.

We speculated on the "views" of the deceased by the number of Dr. Pusey's works on the one hand, or Frederick Denison Maurice's or Horace Bushnell's on the other. If we found Scott's Commentaries we knew that we had the hand on quite a different mental and spiritual pulse and that the departed clergyman had begun life a very great while ago. In this upper room were also rows of theology brought direct from England, and on one of these shelves, I remember I found, in a volume of Archbishop Trench's sermons, the written word of the author that he gave the book to the Archbishop of Canterbury. I dashed below and deposited the 50 cents, which was the price of the book, and thereafter read the autograph many times, but never the sermons.

One met many pleasant people at No. 28 Cornhill, and we exchanged convictions on the best editions, and on the relative merits of Zehndorff and Riviere bindings, which were kept in an open shelf near Mr. Bartlett's corner. Mr. Bartlett always advised us to keep our best bindings in the open and not under glass; they needed air to breathe, like other people, and dust never injured them, he said.

Even the theological students were not bent upon theology only. We all wanted the Macmillan Tennyson and the Smith-Elder Browning; and Mr. Bartlett, father and son, with Mr. Chase, took opportunity to buy up many sets, giving us the advantage of the low prices at which the sets were bought. It was a bright afternoon for us, when walking in from Cambridge over the old noisy bridge, we had news from Mr. Bartlett in his corner that what he had hoped to get for us was found.

One day the senior partner became autobiographical. As I stood by his desk he confessed that he had not found book-selling very profitable. "Really," he said with a smile, "I could have received a better income from my money if I had simply put it out at interest; but I like these books and I like the people who enjoy buying them — and, after all, this is my life. The money doesn't matter."

So he continued to the end, and so his son carried on the work after him. Students ceased to come in the old way, and Mr. Bartlett, the younger, told me that he rather thought that college students or young persons or prospective parsons were not creating libraries as in the old time. Any way, they did not haunt the tables and the shelves as once they did. Accordingly the shop moved across the street and became more specialized: the old and rare books were what one went to Bartlett's to find in later years.

This letter may seem to be more about the father than the son, but so I think the son would like it to be; for he loyally carried forward into a new generation a form of service to which his father had devoted his life. We may hope that such bookshops may be a symbol of our community to the end.

A Plea to the Music Lovers of Andover

A few evenings ago Mr. Gordon Brown who has done such good work with the choir of the Episcopal Church in our community suggested to the writer the possibility of making all the musical elements of the town for a large performance of the St. Matthew Passion of Bach. Would not all those fond of singing turn the suggestion over in their mind during the coming summer months. The St. Matthew Passion and the B Minor Mass are probably the two greatest choral compositions ever written, and anyone who associates the name of Bach with pedantic counterpoint is certainly not conversant with the melodious richness and the dramatic power of these choral works. It was Mendelssohn — certainly no dry pedant — who revived the St. Matthew Passion just one hundred years after its first performance. The plan for an Andover performance is perfectly feasible provided all those musically inclined will give their support. It would be necessary to organize in addition to the regular full rehearsals sub-rehearsals for the various parts, but such rehearsals could be held at private homes and could be well made delightful evenings instead of just one more appointment on an already overcrowded schedule. Think it over, talk it over, and if the suggestion appeals be willing to attend a meeting for a fuller discussion on the early fall.

PUNCHARD NOTES

Successful Junior Dance

A dance, which proved to be the largest of the year, was given Saturday evening, May 10, in Punchedard hall. The members of the class social committee tried to make the decorations of the hall as artistic and charming as possible, and certainly succeeded, for the crepe paper of blue, yellow and pink was arranged in such a manner as to produce an entirely new effect. Toward the close of the dance confetti and colored streamers were thrown.

Music for dancing was furnished by Dwyer's orchestra. During the evening refreshments of ice cream, cake and punch were served.

Those who attended the dance were Mabel Walker, Viola Cushman, Emma Daniels, Thresa Proctor, Nettie Pritchard, Ruth May, Ruth Laurate, Dorothy Trott, Helen Rielly, Clara Richards, Frances Farrell, Doris Coolidge, Irma Coolidge, Mildred Howard, Evelyn Miller, Elizabeth Winters, Eleanor Flint, Eleanor Downes, Evelyn Carter, Helen Bickell, Alice Grey, Margaret Graham, Sarah McCoubrie, Caroline Richardson, Ada Pitman, Caroline Dodge, Helen Pitman, Bancroft Pratt, Paul Dwyer, Richard Pratt, Duncan Graham Gardner Shaw, Edward Pritchard, John Fredrickson, Joseph Wright, Ashley Barnes, Calvin Metcalf, Eliot Clark, William Thompson, Gains Walls, Louis Soderberg, George Adams, Oscar Swenson, Malcolm Lundgren, Norman Heitch, Charles Currier, John Souther, George Dufton, Sumner Davis, William McCoubrie, Clyde Mears, Knowlton Stone, Edward Platt and Edward Bonner.

It was decided at the meeting to have the class day exercises of former years, and in place of the Class history and class statistics to substitute a pageant or morality play. This will permit a larger number of the pupils to take part in the exercises.

Spring Term Honor List

Prizes Announced for Members of Sewing Club

A fine exhibition by the (clothing club of the Stowe school carried on as a part of the cooperative extension work in agriculture and home economics by the State of Massachusetts, with Mrs. Cecilia Derr, h as local leader, was held in the school hall on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

Miss Murdoch and Stanley De Quoy representing the Massachusetts extension service visited the school on Tuesday and graded the work as follows:

Second-year work—First prize, Emma Stevens; second, Agnes Cromie; tied for third place Alice Sayles and Blanche Glowacki.

Although many of the club girls are members of the regular school sewing classes, the club work is carried on quite independently. Meetings are held one afternoon each week after school hours from December to May. Four girls are taking up second-year work and twenty-six, first-year work. All are members of either Grades VII or VIII.

The work required of the first-year girls is one apron, choice of simple house dress, kimono, nightgown, rompers, chemise or bloomers, one of which is to be hemmed by hand. A collection is made of ten cotton materials which must be identified, mottled and labeled, and ten stockings must have to be darned. For home tasks, the girls are required to wash dishes fifty times, clean silver once, make beds twenty-five times, clean and oil stove once, and choose three of the following: dust twice, sweep twice, clean windows twice, iron twice, mend twice (other than stockings).

One garment and one apron showing hand hemming is exhibited, one stocking darn and the textile booklet. A story is also written of the work done.

Most of the Andover girls chose the nightgown and apron as garments to be made. The textile booklet of Marjorie Watson of Shawheen Village is worthy of special mention because of the unique way in which her samples were displayed. On each sheet were two little silhouette figures formed partly with the paint brush and partly with the scissors, the samples of gingham, percale and other materials showing through from the under side where the paper was cut out.

The program for the second-year girls includes an apron or a chemise, plain petticoat, princess slip or bloomers, club uniform, cotton dress, cotton shirt or simple blouse. To these are added the textile booklet, the darning of ten stockings, six buttonholes and the same home tasks as in the first year.

The members of the Stowe school sewing club are: Blanche Glowacki, Alice Sayles, Sylvia Hurwicz, Hazel Polgreen, Eleanor Hill, Thelma Dodge, Mary Williams, Charlotte Mason, Pauline Burr, Mary Angus, Eunice O'Donnell, Evelyn Marr, Eleanor Ramsdell, Mary Lamont, Elsie Pettie, Katherine Blunt, Emma Stevens, Grace Parker, Elizabeth Blanchard, Marjorie Watson, Olivine Noel, Jeanne Harrington, Madeline Kimball, Marguerite Doucette, Alice Ward, Doris Shaw, Beatrice Farnsworth, Bessie Downs, Agnes Cromie, Eleanor Thompson.

There is also a Poultry club with five members. The Stowe school which meets with Mr. De Quoy, the county leader, once a month. Philip Allen is its president. This club will not finish its work until June.

Other activities carried on outside of school hours include an arts and crafts class where the girls have enjoyed decorating book ends, salad sets, luncheon sets, making leather pocketbooks and many other pretty and useful articles. Miss Bernice Simpson is the leader of this group.

A school orchestra is another organization which has stimulated an interest in music. Twelve health posters have been prepared by the Stowe and Punchedard scholars under the direction of Leslie Coffin and Miss Stimpson which will be entered in the exhibit at Chicago.

Son of Former Andover Woman Dies in Kentucky

The following notice of the death of Charles H. Burr, taken from The Oberlin News of May 8, will be of interest to Townsend readers who remember his mother, Mrs. Fannie Hammond Burr, who formerly made her home on Salem street in Andover and was graduated from the Punchedard school in the Class of 1874.

News of the death of Charles H. Burr came as a great shock to the many friends who had wished him God speed six weeks ago when he left for Berea, Ky., to become head of the department of physics. His death occurred Saturday, May 3, after a brief illness of pneumonia. Burial took place in Berea, members of his physics class acting as pall bearers, and President Hutchins conducting the services.

Mr. Burr was born in Franklin, N. H., February 14, 1878, and was the second child of six, four brothers and two sisters. In 1891 his father, August H. Burr, O. C. '71, died; and two or three years later his mother, Mrs. Fannie Hammond Burr, moved to Oberlin to make her home and educate the children. He was a member of the class of '03, and for the two years following assisted in the physical laboratory. From 1905-1907 he was tutor of physics in Oberlin Academy. August 30, 1904, he married Miss Annie B. Harding, the daughter of a missionary to India; and in September, 1907, they sailed for India, where Mr. Burr taught in the high school at Ahmednager and had charge of the manual training. He also for a time had oversight of the Jour dist. district, visiting the teachers and ministers, and if there was a shortage in the funds necessary for carrying on the work, seeing that the money was in some way raised. Last year they returned to this country and in the fall came to Oberlin to make their home.

Besides his wife he leaves two children—Donald Harding, a freshman in college, and Alice Elizabeth, who was born after they went to India. His mother, three brothers and one sister are still living, as are also an aunt, Miss Celia Burr of West Lorain street, and an uncle, Professor Almon Burr of Beloit, Wis.

Square and Compass Club Repeats Minstrel Show

The second performance of the minstrel show given by the Andover Square and Compass club drew a good sized audience to the Town hall last Friday evening. The strong chorus, excellent soloists, and lively end men all contributed to the success of the occasion.

The specialties included two solos by Thomas W. Parkinson "On the Road to Mandalay" and "Caroline"; a dancing act by William McCarthy of Boston; two songs by Jack Hill, "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" and "Mary of Araby"; and "One Fleeting Hour" and "I Am Drifting Back to Dreamland" sung by William A. Stevens of Stoneham. Little Miss Katherine Burns of Lawrence, who gave solo numbers as well as dancing with the end men in the grand finale, brought forth rounds of applause in appreciation of the pleasure she had given. A number not on the program, but one that was much appreciated, was a piano solo by Mr. Whittier.

At the close, the interlocutor, George A. Higgins, called Director Whittier to the footlights and presented him with a bouquet and a large box of cigars. In less than three weeks he produced one of the best minstrel shows ever seen in Andover and in accepting the gifts of the club generously shared the success of the show with the members of the cast who cooperated heartily with him during the rehearsals. He was ably assisted by his partner, Robert McKenna as stage manager.

The members of the committee who had charge of the show were Charles E. Foster, chairman, Harry W. Wadman, Kirk R. Batcheller, George H. Wiswall, I. R. Kimball, Fred H. Morrison and John C. Ralph. Dancing was enjoyed till midnight, music being furnished by Stanley Pratt's orchestra.

Meeting of Baptist Mission Circle

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Jenkins had charge of the May meeting of the Ladies' Mission Circle of the Baptist church. Though May by the calendar, the day helped prove the truth of Lowell's couplet:

"For half our May's so awfully like May's,"
"Twould rile a Shaker or an 'erridge saint."

After the reports, came the interesting questionnaire from "Missions": To find all the eighteen answers requires much careful reading, and insures an increase of missionary knowledge.

Acting upon the report of the nominating committee, the officers now serving were re-elected for the coming year: Mrs. Mary S. Jackson, president; Mrs. Henry S. Jenkins, vice president; Mrs. John Bacon, secretary; Miss Margaret Caldwell, treasurer; Miss Edna P. Todd, corresponding secretary. Missionaries in South India and South China were heard from, through copies of letters from the rooms at Boston. The great work and needs came closer home to all hearts through these intimate glimpses into the home, school and hospital life of the young missionaries, who make such earnest appeals for prayer and other help. "Do pray that we may more quickly lead these people to the great Light,—an impossible human task, but with God all things are possible.—Our hope is only in His grace as He keeps us from day to day."

Mrs. Jenkins gave the fifth chapter of the study book, "Achievements of the Christian Movement," in an admirably condensed form, very interesting to her absorbed listeners.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Joseph Schildkraut, whose acting in "Liliom," "Peer Gynt" and "The Pagans" won him large favor among playgoers, will be seen for the third week at the Majestic Theatre, beginning Monday night, May 19, in the gay love comedy, "The Highwayman," a play which affords the young actor ample opportunity to exhibit his handsome features and display his zestful flair for comedy.

"The Highwayman" is a sparkling, modern spoken comedy which races along with pinwheels of repartee, skyrackets of amusing situations and a giant cracker of two of drama, all exploding at the proper junctures.

Lotus Robb, who made such a big hit in "Rollo's Wild Out," and "The Green Goddess," occupies the lead opposite the star. Next in importance is Jessie Royce Landis, niece of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis. Others are John Westley, Philip Lord, Corbett Morris, Lester Scharif, Hilda Graham, Theodore Westman, Jr., Gordon Pascale, N. R. Creswell, and others.

"The Highwayman" is the work of Lajos Biro, reaches Boston after 300 consecutive nights in Vienna and long runs in Chicago and Philadelphia. It will be exhibited before New York audiences at an early date. It is under Lester Bryant's direction.

The play was adapted by Gladys Unger who wrote "The Marriage Market," "The Goldfish" and "The Business Widow."

WILBUR THEATRE

Fay Bainter is starred in a new musical play this season at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, starting on the second week beginning Monday, May 19, before its official opening in New York. The name of it is "The Dream Girl," a musical play by Victor Herbert and Rida Johnson Young which has been adapted from the play "The Road to Yesterday" by War Wolf, who was in "The Lady in Ermine" company, is the featured member of the supporting company which includes many well-known musical comedy favorites and a chorus of thirty American tourist girls.

The story of "The Dream Girl" takes place in England and concerns the experiences of a group of American girl students who have gone to England to study. Elspeth, one of their friends, is introduced to Jack Greterex, an American athlete, at a party which is given at the studio of a young English artist.

At her meeting with Greterex, Elspeth has a feeling that she has met him before, and the same feeling is shared by Jack. That night, in a dream, Elspeth strays from her castle to a rude inn in the country. There is a disturbance outside the inn and Greterex, who appears as a knight, comes to her rescue. Later her guardian, Lord Strangeven appears and takes her back to the castle. Strangeven has been a selfish tyrant and means to marry Elspeth because she is an heiress, but at a critical moment Greterex appears and again rescues Elspeth, fighting his way with her out of the castle.

The dances and ensembles have been staged by David Bennett and the play staged by Laura Hope Crews.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

Mrs. Fiske, the delightful artist, is playing at the Plymouth Theatre in "Helena's Boys," a comedy written by Ida Lublinski. Ehrlich from a short story by Mary Brent Pulver. Those who know and love the mention of Mrs. Fiske's name evenings filled with charm and stimulated with wit, the playwright's sometimes, Mrs. Fiske's always, because as James Whitaker wrote recently in the New York American, "Mrs. Fiske has gone all the way through the territory of her art and come out on the other side, where she has found the artist's final triumph — a familiarity with and a kindly dubious contempt for the muse she once worshipped." It may be folly to attempt to interpret another's phrase but this seems to mean that Mrs. Fiske collaborates with her playwrights and brings to their works an understanding of human nature which equals when it doesn't surpass their own understanding of their characters. Certainly she brings the supreme interpretative gift which makes her audiences enjoy with her the whimsicalities and the bewilderments of the theatre she portrays. In "Helena's Boys" this character is the mother of two sons, both moderns of the most modern type, and her problem is not so much how to make them see her wisdom as it is to understand and adapt herself to theirs. She accomplishes this, however, with highly diverting results.

"Helena's Boys" requires and has an excellent cast of supporting players. Harrison Grey Fiske has directed the play, which is produced under the management and direction of Charles L. Wagner. The second week begins Monday, May 19.

TREMONT THEATRE

It goes without saying that for a production with the scope and spectacle that Cecil B. DeMille has put into "The Ten Commandments," advisers of every walk and avocation in life have been called in to explain, caution, guide and aid the director. Mr. DeMille has ever been most considerate in his solicitations to obtain the best advice and most expert opinion from the highest men and women of the arts, professions and avocations directly pertinent to the making of any one of his fifty productions. Especially was this so in the molding and making of "The Ten Commandments" which is now on its tenth week at the Tremont theatre, Boston.

DeMille did not rush in "where Angels fear to tread," without deep thought and wise counsel. He had no half-baked ideas, neither did he base the making of the spectacle on rigid sectarian views, but rather sought out the consensus of scholarly minds. Egyptologists were constantly at his side during the scenes of Pabroah and his court. Reverend Rabbis guided him through the Exodus and the Wilderness, Protestant clergy and the Venerable Roman Catholic Bishop of Central California were the welcome guests and advisers at the making of the climaxes and gave their approval of what was being done.

It was this Catholic spirit that has made the production so unanimously praised from the Pacific to the Atlantic and beyond the Atlantic to the Pavilion Theatre, London, England. There is no sectarianism, no cult, no damning of one and uplifting the other. It is the everyday life of us mortals reaching over a period of thousands of years — both Hebrew and Christian — and has the universal appeal of heart and soul.

There are daily matinees at 2.10 while the evening performances begin promptly at 8.10. A mail order department has been set up in the Tremont Theatre box office where out-of-town folk are cared for in reservations.

ESSEX COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL NOTES

Professor J. C. Graham to Talk to Essex County Poultrymen

All Essex County Poultrymen are invited to attend the next meeting of Essex County Commercial Poultrymen's Association to be held at the Agricultural School, Hathorne, May 20, at 1.30 p.m. There will be a short business meeting, after which Professor J. C. Graham, head of the Poultry Department at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, will speak on the "Feeding and Management of the Growing Stock." This subject is particularly important at this time, as the proper care of young stock is foremost in the minds of all poultrymen. Professor Graham is well acquainted with the industry as carried on in all parts of the state. There will also be an opportunity to get information on personal problems.

Professor Graham comes to Essex County at the request of County Agent Bertman Tomlinson, who is also secretary of the Poultrymen's Association, which is co-operating with the Extension Service in its various activities.

Fruit Division Activities

The delayed dormant spray has been applied to all of our trees, young and old. The young orchard has been plowed and will be harrowed occasionally until mid-summer, when it will be seeded down.

About two thousand raspberry plants have been planted between the pear trees which were set last year. The raspberries will be removed long before the trees need the ground for a feeding area. Five thousand strawberry plants, principally Howard 17 and Abingtons, are being set this week. A new vineyard is being prepared for 125 grapevines. These will include the three leading varieties for this county.

Joseph Grotto of Beverly, Armand Poitras of Middleton, George Rippon of Lynn, and George Stickney of Haverhill, all Essex Aggie students, have been retained at the School for summer employment. The boys will be instructed in the best practices for the culture of small and large fruits by Mr. Meigs and Mr. Wood of the school staff.

Homemaking Department Notes

In the Home-making Department, the senior girls are busy during their sewing periods in making their graduation clothing. Not only their dresses but every article of wearing apparel is made at the school, and naturally, it is a most interesting and fascinating piece of school work.

Wednesday, June 4, is the day set for the annual Parents' Day at the Homemaking Department of the school. This is the day on which the students entertain their parents and friends and invite them to inspect some of the work done during the year.

On May 16 the Seniors and the High School Special class will visit Faneuil Hall Market and go through Arthur E. Dorr's wholesale and retail department. A meat-cutting demonstration has been arranged, and a complete explanation of the various cuts will be given.

In the afternoon, the classes will visit Walter Baker's chocolate factory and be instructed in the many processes involved in the making of the finished cocoa and chocolate products.

"Essex Farmer and Home-Maker"

The May issue of the "Essex Farmer and Home-Maker," a bi-monthly paper, published by this School, has been received from the printer. This issue contains a timely article on spraying, together with a good spray schedule for Essex County orchards. Several other articles of interest to the Essex County home-makers and farmers appear in this issue. A free copy will be sent upon application.

Concerning the Bartlett Bookstore

The following letter giving an interesting picture of the place the Bartlett Bookstore at Cornhill held in the educational life of Boston during the last generation is reprinted from The Boston Herald of May 12. To the Editor of The Herald:

The death of Nathaniel Edward Bartlett recalls to all who read books the debt we owe to the educated bookseller who has wide interests. I first knew the familiar bookshop of Messrs. N. J. Bartlett and Co., at 28 Cornhill, in the later eighties, when Mr. N. J. Bartlett (Mr. Nathaniel E. Bartlett's father) was alive. It was then the resort of Harvard students and especially of divinity students and younger clergymen.

Mr. Bartlett, the senior, sat behind his high desk in the corner by the window and greeted us as we entered. I think he knew us all, and always remembered the kind of books which were most alluring to each one of us. He would tell us, perhaps, that Dr. George Gordon had recently been in, and had said bonny words about a certain volume. Or, perhaps, Mr. Chase had just returned from England with boxes filled with rare findings; he had, for instance, a good many volumes of the Pickering Coleridge. (Most of us dreamed that some day we might have a whole set of "Pickering Coleridge.")

Not only were the shelves and tables downstairs groaning with books old and new, but there was a floor upstairs to which we were pleasantly invited. Here we would often find the whole library of some well-known clergyman, and we would wonder pathetically if, after we died, our libraries would be beginning, and lovingly growing, volume by volume, would be deposited by our heirs on that same long table. We speculated on the "views" of the deceased by the number of Dr. Pusey's works on one hand, or Frederick Denison Maurice's or Horace Bushnell's on the other. If we found Scott's Commentaries we knew that we had the hand on quite a different mental and spiritual pulse and that the departed clergyman had begun life a very great while ago. In this upper room were also rows of theology brought directly from England, and on one of these shelves, I remember I found, in a volume of Archbishop Trench's sermons, the written word of the author that he gave the book to the Archbishop of Canterbury. I dashed below and deposited the 50 cents, which was the price of the book, and thereafter read the autograph many times, but never the sermons.

One met many pleasant people at No. 28 Cornhill, and we exchanged convictions on the best editions, and on the relative merits of Zehndorff and Riviere bindings, which were kept in an open shelf near Mr. Bartlett's corner. Mr. Bartlett always advised us to keep our best bindings in the open and not under glass; they needed air to breathe, like other people, and dust never injured them, he said.

Even the theological students were not bent upon theology only. We all wanted the Macmillan Tennyson and the Smith-Elder Browning; and Mr. Bartlett, father and son, with Mr. Chase, took opportunity to buy many sets, giving us the advantage of the low prices at which the sets were bought. It was a bright afternoon for us, when walking in from Cambridge over the old noisy bridge, we had news from Mr. Bartlett in his corner that what he had hoped to get for us was found.

One day the senior partner became autobiographical. As I stood by his desk he confessed that he had not found book-selling very profitable. "Really," he said with a smile, "I could have received a better income from my money if I had simply put it out at interest; but I like these books and I like the people who enjoy buying them — and, after all, this is my life. The money doesn't matter."

So he continued to the end, and so his son carried on the work after him. Students ceased to come in the old way, and Mr. Bartlett, the younger, told me that he rather thought that college students or young persons or prospective persons were not creating libraries as in the old time. Any way, they did not haunt the tables and the shelves as once they did. Accordingly the shop moved across the street and became more specialized: the old and rare books were what one went to Bartlett's to find in later years.

This letter may seem to be more about the father than the son, but so I think the son would like it to be; for he loyally carried forward into a new generation a form of service to which his father had devoted his life. We may hope that such bookshops may be a symbol of our community to the end.

A Plea to the Music Lovers of Andover

A few evenings ago Mr. Gordon Brown who has done such good work with the choir of the Episcopal Church in our community suggested to the writer the possibility of massing all the musical elements of the town for a large performance of the St. Matthew Passion of Bach. Would not all those fond of singing turn the suggestion over in their mind during the coming summer months. The St. Matthew Passion and the B Minor Mass are probably the two greatest choral compositions ever written, and anyone who associates the name of Bach with pedantic counterpoint is certainly not conversant with the melodious richness and the dramatic power of these choral works. It was Mendelssohn — certainly no dry pedant — who revived the St. Matthew Passion just one hundred years after its first performance. The plan for an Andover performance is perfectly feasible provided all those musically inclined will give it their support. It would be necessary to organize in addition to the regular full rehearsals sub-rehearsals for the various parts, but such rehearsals could be held at private homes and could be well made delightful evenings instead of just one more performance of the St. Matthew Passion. Think it over, talk it over, and if the suggestion appeals be willing to attend a meeting for a fuller discussion on the early fall.

Successful Junior Dance

A dance, which proved to be the largest of the year, was given Saturday evening, May 10, in Punchard hall. The members of the class social committee tried to make the decorations of the hall as artistic and charming as possible, and certainly succeeded, for the crepe paper of blue, yellow and pink was arranged in such a manner as to produce an entirely new effect. Toward the close of the dance confetti and colored streamers were thrown.

Music for dancing was furnished by Dwyer's orchestra. During the evening refreshments of ice cream, cake and punch were served.

Those who attended the dance were Mabel Walker, Viola Cushman, Emma Daniels, Thersa Proctor, Nettie Pritchard, Ruth May, Ruth Laurie, Dorothy Trotter, Helen Kieley, Clara Richards, Frances Farrell, Doris Coolidge, Irma Coolidge, Mildred Howard, Evelyn Miller, Elizabeth Winters, Eleanor Flint, Eleanor Downes, Evelyn Carter, Helen Bickell, Alice Grey, Margaret Graham, Sarah McCoubrie, Caroline Richardson, Ada Pitman, Caroline Dodge, Helen Pitman, Bancroft Pratt, Paul Dwyer, Richard Pratt, Duncan Graham, Gardner Shaw, Edward Pritchard, John Fredrickson, Joseph Wright, Ashley Barnes, Calvin Metcalf, Eliot Clark, William Thompson, Gains Walls, Louis Soderberg, George Adams, Oscar Swenson, Malcolm Lundgren, Norman Hatch, Charles Currier, John Souter, George Dufton, Sumner Davis, William McCoubrie, Clyde Mears, Knowlton Stone, Edward Platt and Edward Bonner.

It was decided at the meeting to vary the class day exercises of former years, and in place of the Class history and class statistics to substitute a pageant or morality play. This will permit larger number of the pupils to take part in the exercises.

Prizes Announced for Members of Sewing Club

A fine exhibition by the Clothing club of the Stowe school carried on as a part of the cooperative extension work in agriculture and home economics by the State of Massachusetts, with Mrs. Cecilia Derr as local leader, was held in the school hall on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

Miss Murdoch and Stanley De Quoy representing the Massachusetts extension service visited the school on Tuesday and graded the work as follows:

Second-year work—First prize, Emma Stevens; second, Agnes Cromie; tied for third place Alice Sayles and Blanche Glowacki.

Although many of the club girls are members of the regular school sewing classes, the club work is carried on quite independently. Meetings are held one afternoon each week after school hours from December to May. Four girls are taking up second-year work and twenty-six, first-year work. All are members of either Grades VII or VIII.

The work required of the first-year girls is an apron, a chemise of simple dress, kimono, nightgown, rompers, chemise or bloomers, one of which is to be hemmed by hand. A collection is made of ten cotton materials which must be identified, mounted and labeled, and ten stockings must have been darned. For home tasks, the girls are required to wash dishes fifty times, clean silver once, make beds twenty-five times, clean and oil stove once, and choose three of the following: dust twice, sweep twice, clean windows twice, iron twice, mend twice (other than stockings).

One garment and one apron showing hand hemming is exhibited, one stocking darn and the textile booklet. A story is also written of the work done.

Most of the Andover girls chose the nightgown and apron as garments to be made. The textile booklet of Marjorie Watson of Shawshoen Village is worthy of special mention because of the unique way in which her samples were displayed. On each sheet were two little silhouetted figures formed partly with the paint brush and partly with the scissors, the samples of gingham, percale and other materials showing through from the under side where the paper was cut out.

The program for the second-year girls includes an apron or a chemise, plain petticoat, princess slip or bloomers, club uniform, dress, coat, cotton shirt or simple blouse. To these are added the textile booklet, the darning of ten stockings, six buttonholes and the same home tasks as in the first year.

The members of the Stowe school sewing club are: Blanche Glowacki, Alice Sayles, Sylvia Hurwicz, Hazel Polgreen, Eleanor Hill, Thelma Dodge, Mary Williams, Clarabell Mason, Pauline Burt, Mary Angus, Katherine O'Donnell, Evelyn Marr, Eleanor Ramsdell, Mary Lamont, Ella Petrie, Katherine Blunt, Emma Stevens, Grace Parker, Elizabeth Blanchard, Marjorie Watson, Olive Noel, Jeanne Harrington, Madeline Kimball, Marguerite Doucette, Alice Ward, Doris Shaw, Beatrice Farnsworth, Bessie Downs, Agnes Cromie, Eleanor Thompson.

There is also a Poultry club with five members at the Stowe school which meets with Mr. De Quoy, the county leader, once a month. Philip Allen is its president. This club will not finish its work until June. Other activities carried on outside of school hours include an arts and crafts class where the girls have enjoyed decorating book ends, salad sets, luncheon sets, making leather pocketbooks and many other pretty and useful articles. Miss Bernice Stimpson is the leader of this group.

A school orchestra is another organization which has stimulated an interest in music. Twelve health posters have been prepared by the Stowe and Punchard scholars under the direction of Leslie Coffin and Miss Stimpson which will be entered in the exhibit at Chicago.

Son of Former Andover Woman Dies in Kentucky

The following notice of the death of Charles H. Burr, taken from The Oberlin News of May 8, will be of interest to Townsend readers who remember his mother, Mrs. Fannie Hammond Burr, who formerly made her home on Salem street in Andover and was graduated from the Punchard school in the Class of 1874.

News of the death of Charles H. Burr came as a great shock to the many friends who had wished him God speed six weeks ago when he left for Berea, Ky., to become head of the department of physics. His death occurred Saturday, May 3, after a brief illness of pneumonia. Burial took place in Berea, members of his physics class acting as pall bearers, and President Hutchins conducting the services.

Mr. Burr was born in Franklin, N. H., February 14, 1878, and was the second child of six, four brothers and two sisters. In 1891 his father, August H. Burr, O. C. '71, died, and two or three years later his mother, Mrs. Fannie Hammond Burr, moved to Oberlin to make her home and educate the children, all but two of whom graduated from college. He was a member of the class of '03, and for the two years following assisted in the physical laboratory. From 1905-1907 he was tutor of physics in Oberlin Academy. August 30, 1904, he married Miss Annie B. Harding, the daughter of a missionary to India; and in September, 1907, they sailed for India, where Mr. Burr taught in the high school at Ahmednagar and had charge of the manual training. He also for a time had oversight of the Jeur district, visiting the teachers and ministers, and if there was a shortage in the funds necessary for carrying on the work, seeing that the money was in some way raised. Last year they returned to this country and in the fall came to Oberlin to make their home.

Besides his wife he leaves two children—Donald Harding, a freshman in college, and Alice Elizabeth, who was born after they went to India. His mother, three brothers and one sister are still living, as are also an aunt, Miss Celia Burr of West London of Beirut, and an uncle, Professor Almon Burr of St. Louis, Mo.

Neetab Camp Fire Supper

The Neetab Camp Fire Girls held an indoor fire-makers supper last Friday in Punchard school to allow girls to qualify for the fire-makers test. The out-of-doors supper will be held next month.

The girls who served the supper were: Dorothy Douglas, Edna Albers, Doris Woodward, Beatrice Henderson and Francis Metcalf and the menu included chicken wiggle, cheese dreams, pickles and strawberries.

An entertainment was given by Miss Frances Metcalf, who contributed a vocal solo and a toe dance and by Miss Doris Woodward who gave a mandolin solo.

A DREAM OF THE FLOWERS

Ice cream—Miss E. A. Brown, Elizabeth Hilton, Emily Baker, Olive Warden. Pop corn—Mrs. J. M. Ashton, Joyce Henry, Marion Couts, Cynthia Nichols. Lemonade and grubs—Girls of Mrs. Graham Johnson's church school class: Gwendolyn Bradden, Mary Ella Southworth, Elizabeth Southworth, Olive Warden, Mary K. Johnson, Annetta Anderson, Mildred Howard, Margaret Graham.

The leaders of St. Catherine's Guild, under whose guidance the girls presented the cantata and held the sale are Mrs. Frank Paige, Mrs. Joseph N. Ashton and Miss Ethel F. Brown.

Square and Compass Club Repeats Minstrel Show

The second performance of the minstrel show given by the Andover Square and Compass club drew a good sized audience to the Town hall last Friday evening. The strong chorus, excellent soloists, and lively end men all contributed to the success of the occasion.

The specialties included two solos by Thelma W. Parkinson—"On the Road to Mandalay" and "Caroline"; a dancing act by William McCarthy of Boston; two songs by Jack Hill, "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" and "Mary of Argyle"; and "One Fleeting Hour" and "I Am Drifting Back to Dreamland" sung by William A. Stevens of Stoneham. Little Miss Katherine Burns of Lawrence, who gave solo numbers as well as dancing with the end men in the grand finale, brought forth rounds of applause. She was presented with a beautiful bouquet in appreciation of the pleasure she had given. A number not on the program, but one that was much appreciated, was a piano solo by Mr. Whittier.

At the close, the interactor, George A. Higgins, called Director Whitten to the footlights and presented him with a bouquet and a large box of cigars. In less than three weeks he produced one of the best minstrel shows ever seen in Andover and in accepting the gifts of the club generously shared the success of the show with the members of the cast who cooperated heartily with him during the rehearsals. He was ably assisted by his partner, Robert McKenna as stage manager.

The members of the committee who had charge of the show were Charles E. Foster, chairman, Harry W. Wadman, Kirk R. Batcher, George H. Wiswall, I. R. Kimball, Fred H. Morrison and John C. Ralph. Dancing was enjoyed till midnight, music being furnished by Stanley Pratt's orchestra.

AFTERNOON SESSION
"City Planning"—Mrs. Osmond, head of local City Planning Board.

If there is time there will be a discussion of Lowell's relation to Middlesex County, illustrated by maps, charts and posters, especially prepared for Middlesex and Essex Counties.

If there is time there will be a discussion of Lowell's relation to Middlesex County, illustrated by maps, charts and posters, especially prepared for Middlesex and Essex Counties.
Andover League members are eligible and it is hoped that several motor parties will be planned.

Meeting of Baptist Mission Circle

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Jenkins had charge of the May meeting of the Ladies' Mission Circle of the Baptist church. Though May by the calendar, the day helped prove the truth of Lowell's couplet:

"For half our May's so awfully like May'n't," "T'would rile a Shaker or an' ev'ry saint."
After the reports, came the interesting questionnaire from "Missions". To find all the eighteen answers requires much careful reading, and insures an increase of missionary knowledge.

Acting upon the report of the nominating committee, the officers now serving were re-elected for the coming year: Mrs. Mary S. Jackson, president; Mrs. Henry S. Jenkins, vice president; Mrs. John Bacon, secretary; Miss Margaret Caldwell, treasurer; Miss Edna P. Todd, corresponding secretary.
Missionaries in South India and South China were heard from, through copies of letters from the rooms at Boston. The great work and needs came closer home to all hearts through these intimate glimpses into the home, school and hospital life of the young missionaries, who make such earnest appeals for prayer and other help. "Do pray that we may more quickly lead these people to the great Light—an impossible human task, but with God all things are possible.—Our hope is only in His grace as He keeps us from day to day."
Mrs. Jenkins gave the fifth chapter of the study book, "Achievements of the Christian Movement," in an admirably condensed form, very interesting to her absorbed listeners.

Our Traffic Problem

More than most towns in this vicinity, Andover has felt the effect of the steadily increasing number of motor vehicles registered and operated within the Commonwealth. Even in small isolated villages, the problem is not a simple one; but Andover is located on a broad thoroughfare running north and south, a trunk line, so to speak, drawing upon a prosperous industrial section. It is, furthermore, the junction point for two important highways, one from Lawrence and the other from Haverhill, both with streams of traffic moving to and from Boston. It is a fact that, on holiday afternoons and often on summer week-days, the line of motor vehicles moving through the square is almost unbroken, so much so that it is difficult for a pedestrian to find an opportunity to cross or for another automobile to enter from a side street. An average of thirty cars a minute passed a given point on the Hill on a Sunday evening not very long ago. Within thirty years Andover has been transformed from a comparatively quiet and undisturbed country town into what is virtually a city suburb, with many of the annoyances of a metropolitan district.

It is obviously vain to attempt to block the march of the world. Progress, especially mechanical progress, has become a Car of Juggernaut, knocking down and flattening all who get in its path. Wise and intelligent people accept conditions as they are, try to make the best of them, and do not oppose "the army of unalterable law." We cannot, even if we wished to do so, take the town up bodily and transport it to a less accessible location; we would not wish to restrict the manufacture or the purchase of motor-driven vehicles; and we must consequently reconcile ourselves to the facts, recognize and utilize the conveniences which automobiles offer, and try to minimize their evils.

It is foolish for us to evade one truth,—that, as a people, we shall inevitably be forced to spend large amounts, both locally and in the state, in building and maintaining our roads. What was good enough when horses and bicycles were common modes of transportation is not good enough today. Within the borders of the town at the present moment there are stretches which cannot much longer be neglected. Those who have traversed the chief route between Andover and North Andover know that there are points where the motorist feels as if he were picking his way through an area of shell holes; and there are other streets which are not much better. The difficulties involved in reconstruction are so stupendous that any hand-to-mouth policy is bound to be the most expensive in the end. Nothing but a comprehensive survey of the entire ground, with plans for a far-distant future, should be undertaken.

The late Honorable John N. Cole, who was a man of foresight and vision and who was thoroughly acquainted with the facts, had theories regarding the eventual traffic development of New England which may yet be shown to be the most sensible ever suggested. In the back of his mind was constantly the idea of creating "new main arteries," which should follow direct routes from one great city to another, avoiding the crowded centers of population and possibly paralleling some of the existing railroad beds. The proposal to build a state highway of this nature between such places as Lawrence and Boston is comparable to that of engineering a new railway line; but our fathers and grandfathers did not hesitate to commit themselves to such a project seventy years ago, and it is quite conceivable that a scheme like this, chimerical though it may appear to some critics, may be demonstrated to be the best economy over a period of years. There can be no doubt that such a highway, made easily accessible by side-roads to all the communities near it, would greatly relieve the excessive congestion of which we in Andover are beginning to be more and more conscious.

Under conditions as they are today, reckless driving is a criminal offense, which should be punished with the utmost rigor of the courts. The attitude of our police in insisting that speed regulations should be strictly observed cannot be too highly commended. Every good citizen should be prepared to support any measure which tends to promote the safety of either the law-abiding motorist or the pedestrian.

Up to the present moment the parking situation is not one which has been troublesome in Andover. Fortunately Main street, even around Elm square, was laid out sufficiently wide to permit the standing of cars on both sides of the road. But here again, no one can prophesy that conditions will not be altered before many years have passed. There are times today when it is almost impossible to find parking space at any point between Chestnut street and the square, and we may be sure that the problem will not grow any less acute.

It is, of course, easier to talk platitudes than it is to suggest remedies. Any one can grumble and complain, but it takes a genius at this moment to offer constructive plans for improvement. Of one fact, however, we may be sure,—the automobile, for commercial and pleasure purposes, will be with us for many years to come, and we shall have to exercise all our ingenuity to prevent our becoming the victims of our own machines. Let us hope that we may avoid the fate of Frankenstein, who, after creating his iron monster, was overwhelmed by it. What the Townsman desires to emphasize is the necessity of thinking, not only of ourselves and our generation, but of our children and our children's children.

Cinders

The Townsman joins with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Donald in congratulating them on their recently celebrated Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary. It wishes them many more years of happiness together.

Last week's rains brought much discomfort to many people. One discovered that there was a sudden lapse in the supply of fresh vegetables, caused by the failure of the northern crops to mature as the southern crops ceased. Some of us discovered that there were spots in our roofs which would not withstand a continual beating rain. The gentlemen in the stationers office of the New England Crop Reporting Service at Wakefield were among those who saw the bright lining to the clouds from which the downpour came. Their mid-week bulletin announced that "the snows and rains this spring have fully overcome the moisture deficiency for last season."

Have you Expressed your Opinion on the Garbage Question?

Of the 1800 persons to whom the circular letters explaining the plans for garbage collection were sent, only 208 have replied up to the present time. Those desiring the garbage collection service number 171; those who do not desire it, 99. Twenty-eight persons wish their garbage collected but believe that the expense should be defrayed from the money raised by taxation.

Considering the agitation that there has been over the question during the past year, this is not a large number of replies. It is expected that within the next week all members of the League of Women Voters will have taken the opportunity to express themselves as willing to cooperate with the Board of Selectmen. Any person within the area to be served who has been omitted in the distribution of circulars (a copy of which is reprinted in another column) should apply at once at the Town house and reply post cards will be supplied to them.

Elected Vice President

At the annual reunion of the 44th Mass. Regiment Association, held at Young's hotel, Boston, Wednesday, Charles N. Marland was elected vice president. Five cousins enlisted in Company G of the 44th from Andover, one of whom was Charles H. Marland, father of the newly elected vice president. Of the five cousins, Thomas M. Cogswell, now of Lawrence, is the sole survivor.

Ballard Holt of Andover, for many years librarian of the Memorial hall library, also enlisted in Company G. Walter J. Raymond, for whom the local G. A. R. post is named, was a member of the 44th regiment.

Bird Walk to Foster's Pond

More than twenty members of the Andover Natural History society and their friends participated in the bird walk and picnic held at Rattlesnake hill, Foster's pond, on Wednesday. One of our first fine spring evenings proved to be a good time to observe bird life particularly as the warblers are in flight.

Among the birds seen were the song sparrow, chipping sparrow, robin, black and white warbler, black-throated green warbler, parula warbler, red-winged blackbird, crow, chickadee, chimney swift, ovenbird, oriole, and rose-breasted grosbeak.

Chaplain to Speak on Prison Life

Rev. Fr. M. J. Murphy, chaplain, and for thirteen years connected with the Charlestown state prison will give an illustrated lecture on "Prison Life and Prison Conditions" in the K. of C. rooms this evening, coming to Andover at the invitation of Andover Council, K. of C.

During his years at the Charlestown institution Fr. Murphy has been close to the hearts of those who were cut off from their fellowmen. He has endeared himself to all, both "lifers" and short-term men. He knows their trials and troubles, their sorrows, yearnings and ambitions.

His style of lecturing is not funereal. He sees the bright side of every situation, and humor is not absent from his remarks. Carefully chosen lantern slides help to give his hearers a more graphic conception of prison life and their individual responsibility as citizens touching the welfare of their erring fellowmen.

Wedding

McATAMANEY—DALY

A pretty May wedding was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock in St. Augustine's church when Miss Nellie Daly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Daly of Boston court was united in marriage to James McAtamney of North Main street by Rev. John A. Nugent, O. S. A., pastor of the church.

The bride wore a beautiful dress of powder blue georgette crepe trimmed with silver lace, with hat to match, and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. Miss Katherine Daly a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a hand-embroidered dress of tan crepe with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink Killarney roses. John Doyle, an intimate friend of the groom, was best man.

After a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., the young couple will reside on North Main street.

Odd Fellows Observe Anniversary

In honor of 105 years of Odd Fellowship in this country, Andover Lodge, No. 230, I. O. F., held a banquet, entertainment and dance in Fraternal hall Wednesday evening. It was also ladies' night and about sixty sat down to a supper served by Caterer Weigel of Lawrence, consisting of fruit cocktail, roast beef, mashed potato, string beans, rolls, relishes, ice cream, cake and coffee.

Following the banquet in the dining room, the company adjourned to the hall where a short program of vocal selections by Marie McGrath and readings by Mayhew Stickney was enjoyed. Dancing followed, music being furnished by Lundgren's orchestra.

The members of the committee of arrangements were: Herbert W. Ford, Bertram Stott, George Brown, Alexander McKenzie, Harry Thomas and Claremont I. N. Gray.

Dr. Bigelow Gives Travelogue

The pleasures of travel in countries bordering the Mediterranean were shared by the large audience which gathered in the South Church auditorium last Friday evening to listen to an illustrated travel talk by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow.

Beginning with the departure from New York, Mr. Bigelow vividly described the trip across the ocean, the beautiful island of Madeira, the great rock of Gibraltar, Monte Carlo, Naples with smoking Vesuvius in the distance, Pompeii, and Athens.

Palestine, with visits to Jerusalem, Nazareth, Bethlehem, the Garden of Gethsemane, and the Jordan river, was also included in the trip.

Only a few glimpses of Egypt were given, but a more detailed account of this part of the journey will be given at some future time.

Officers Appointed for Andover Guild

At the annual meeting of the corporation of the Andover Guild held Tuesday evening, the board of directors were elected. They organized as follows: President, C. Carleton Kimball; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Trow; treasurer, Frederic S. Boutwell; director for one year to fill vacancy, Eugene V. Lovely; directors for three years, Mrs. W. A. Trow, Mrs. James J. Feehey, Miss Fannie Davis and H. Gilbert Francke; auditors, P. F. Ripley and F. G. Moore.

Public Exhibition to Be Held by Dental Clinic

A public meeting, open to parents of the school children and any interested friends, will be held by the dental clinic in the Panchard lecture room, Thursday afternoon, May 22, at two o'clock.

The first part of the afternoon will be devoted to an exhibition by the children which will include a health play, health songs and tooth brush drills by children from the first three grades, presented under the direction of Miss Fonos, head hygienist from the Forsyth Dental Infirmary, Boston.

Dr. Sullivan, also from the Forsyth Dental Infirmary will make an address and there will be stereopticon pictures from the State Board of Health showing many interesting things about the teeth.

The dental clinic which has been continuing its work during the past week has practically finished the task of cleaning and examining the teeth of all the children in the first three grades. Tuesday and Wednesday, the nurses worked at the Bruders school in Ballardvale and yesterday and today at the Parochial school. Through the generosity of individuals, the scholars in the country schools have been brought to the Panchard school where they have shared in the benefits offered by the dental clinic. Because of the stormy weather it was impossible to reach everyone and it is hoped to complete this work next week.

Parents are making a fine response to the reports sent home recommending filling or extraction.

Miss Fonos will devote next week to health talks and also in the country schools. There will be an opportunity for parents to consult Miss Fonos about the care of their children's teeth.

Selectmen Ask Cooperation of Voters in Plan for Garbage Disposal

The problem of garbage disposal was referred to the Board of Selectmen with an appropriation of $2000 to start the undertaking at the annual Town meeting held in March. Since that time, the selectmen have zoned the town and formulated a plan which they believe to be workable and self-supporting and in which they ask the cooperation of the householders.

In order to ascertain exactly how many persons really desire the service, and if they are willing to pay a small sum to cover the expense, the selectmen have sent out this week a return post card accompanied by the following circular letter:

At the last annual Town meeting the matter of Garbage Disposal was referred to the Board of Selectmen and the matter since that time has had our earnest consideration. In approaching this problem we have assumed it to be the duty of our Board to establish, if possible, a method of garbage collection and disposal that will be both workable, and self-supporting, and that those benefited will be willing to be assessed for such service. It will be evident to all that no method can be devised that will include all residents of Andover as the cost in outlying districts would be too great. We have, therefore, divided the town, and the following are streets on which garbage may be collected: Allen court, Argyle street, Arundel street, Avon street, Ayer street, Baker lane, Balmoral street, Bancroft road, Barnard street, Bartlett street, Beacon street, Birch street, Brook street, Burnham road, Buxton court, Canterbury street, Carlsbrook street, Carlisle street, Central street, Chapel avenue, Chapman court, Chestnut street, Chickering court, Cuba street, Dumbarton street, Elm court, Elm street, Elm square, Essex street, Enmore street, Ferndale avenue, Fletcher street, Florence street, Gardner avenue, Harding street, Hartigan court, Hawthill street, Hidden road, Higgins court, High street, Highland road, Judson road, Kenilworth street, Kensington street, Lewis street, Locke street, Lowell street, Lupine road, Main street, Maple avenue, Morton street, Magnolia avenue, North Main street, Park street, Pearson street, Phillips street, Pine street, Poor street, Post Office avenue, Pundard avenue, Railroad street, Ridge street, Riverina road, Salem street, School street, Shawshen road, Stirling street, Stevens street, Summer street, Sutherland street, Temple place, Union street, Upland road, Walnut avenue, Washington avenue, Whittier court, Whittier street, Wilbur court, William street, Windsor street, Wolburn street, Wolcott avenue, Woodland road, York street.

This sum will be turned over to the church, to be used as the pastors see fit, either at the parochial school or for repairs on the church property or changes at the cemetery. Of the total amount, $400.93 was made at the whist parties and $604 at the minstrel show.

Tender Supper to Retiring Engineers

Llewellyn Pomeroy and Harry E. Wells, retiring members of the Board of Fire Engineers were guests of honor at a gathering held at the Central Fire station last night. The action of the Town in voting to have a Fire Chief, with the appointment of Charles Emerson to that office, did away with the Board of Fire Engineers, an organization which was formed more than sixty years ago.

A catered supper was served by Thomas E. Rhodes members of both the Andover and Ballardvale departments being present. Charles Buchanan, a past chief, was an invited guest.

Henry Todd acted as toastmaster and remarks were made by several members of the department.

The guests of honor were each pleasantly surprised with the gift of a handsome arm chair, an expression of the good feeling existing between the present members of the fire department and the men who have served on the Board of Fire Engineers.

The remainder of the evening was spent in card playing and sociability.

MIRACLES OF MEDICINE

This work may not live as long as those who have a normal life, but they suffer no pain and have a comfortable, happy existence while they do live. Dr. Baynes spoke of the value of the Shick test and assured his hearers that the startling, though not serious effects of using the frozen serum had not proved anything against its real worth.

Typhoid fever which at the time of the Spanish war caused more deaths than wounds in battle, was reduced to a minimum in the recent World war. Deaths from cerebro-spinal meningitis have been reduced from 85 and 95 per cent to 20 and 25 per cent. The control of yellow fever made possible the building of the Panama canal.

Deliolate operations in surgery, such as the deep irrigation of wounds and the removal of foreign objects from the human stomach are also made possible by animal experimentation.

Not only has the human race benefited by this work, but also the animals themselves. The control of hog cholera which formerly destroyed hogs by the thousand, sheep scab, hoof and mouth disease, and tuberculosis are some of the ills to which animals were formerly subject, the number of cases of which are rapidly being reduced.

The lecture was illustrated with many lantern slides showing the comfortable, well-groomed animals on whom the experiments are made and the human patients who have benefited by their sacrifice.

Dr. Baynes assured his hearers that the purpose of animal experimentation was not to torture dumb animals but to help human beings and asked them to give their support to the friends of medical progress.

In 1891 she became a member of the South Congregational church. She was a woman of sterling worth, hospitable, entertaining friends in her home and giving help to many in need.

In the fall of 1923, she was taken ill and from that time she gradually failed, becoming weaker until she was summoned home on the morning of Wednesday, May 6, 1924, dying at the Old Homestead where she had lived all her life. She will be missed by a host of friends.

Mrs. Cornelia Watson Tarbox, whose death occurred in Chicago, on May eighth, lived in Andover for more than thirty years, and though many of her friends are no longer here, she is still remembered by those who knew her. Mrs. Tarbox was an unusual woman. With an unspoken belief in the care and guidance of the Heavenly Father, she passed calmly through many severe trials. Her deep religious nature combined with rare culture and refinement and pleasing personality endeared her to every one who knew her.

She leaves one son, John Watson Tarbox, to mourn her loss. Her body was cremated and the ashes taken to Nashville, Tenn., to be buried by the grave of her husband, who died many years ago.

Gives Lecture on New Treatment for Disease

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boutwell on last Thursday evening there gathered a group of some fifty appreciative friends, who listened to an instructive lecture delivered by Dr. Frederick Dugdale, a specialist of Boston and Lowell, on the present advanced methods of diagnosing and treating disease by radio or wireless, which is Scientifically known as Electronic diagnosis and treatment.

During his discourse the lecturer referred to the great advances that have been made in medicine during the last fifty years and especially since the discovery of the X-ray by Prof. Roentgen, radium by Mme. Curie, the electron by Prof. Thomson, who propounded the "Electronic Theory," and later the application of this theory to the diagnosis and treatment of disease by Dr. Albert Abrams.

Dr. Dugdale who personally studied with Dr. Abrams in his private laboratory at San Francisco, stated, that he has scientifically proven that the human body is an electrical machine of a composite type, that every cell of our body is a small electrical battery which combines to form larger batteries represented by various organs such as the heart, brain, lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys and the little glands known as the endocrine glands, and that this electrical energy passes over the various nerve parts represented by the central and sympathetic nervous systems of our body. When, therefore, this electrical is working normally and the cells are electrically balanced, we enjoy a condition known as good health, but when this balance is in any way disturbed, a result of the action of any poisonous material which has failed to be removed from the body, we are then in the early stage of unhealth or disease. If an examination of a few drops of the person's blood is made by the physician using the electronic method, at this time he can immediately determine the character of the trouble and approximate the location of the part of the body in which it will be found, and if the condition has not become too far advanced, by selecting a treatment based upon these findings, frequently the cells can be restored to their proper electrical balance.

Every organ in the body has its individual wave length on which it sends out its electrical or electronic energy when in normal condition, and when affected by disease. We, therefore, first determine the wave length of each normal organ and then the wave length when this organ is affected by various disease.

By now comparing the wave length of the electrical or electronic energy of the normal with the wave length of the disease from which the person is suffering, it is possible to locate the organ affected, and the extent to which the disease affecting said organ has advanced. By this method the presence of disease can not only be determined in its earliest stages but frequently years before its presence can be determined by the use of any other method at present known to medical science, and very often before the patient himself is conscious of its symptoms.

Especially is this method of the greatest value in the early diagnosis of such diseases as cancer and tuberculosis and which diagnosis offers the sufferer the only hope of recovery. The treatment which is absolutely painless is given through radio apparatus the electro-magnetic energy being passed through electrodes which are applied to various parts of the body.

In closing Dr. Dugdale who described in detail by illustrations on the black-board the manner in which the diagnosis from the blood specimen is made and treatment given, said "that based upon twenty-one years of active medical practice during which time he has specialized in the treatment of rheumatism, cancer, chronic blood and diseases of the nervous system and the last three years of which have been given to the intensive study of the electronic methods during which time, he has had the opportunity of examining electronically the blood of hundreds of patients and observing the results of treatment in these cases and which diagnoses have been checked with the various methods which the specialists have at their command, that it is his opinion that the diagnosis and treatment of disease by radio, is the greatest advance ever brought to the medical profession and when generally accepted will mean the saving of millions of lives."

During his discourse he told of some very interesting cases which had come under his care and the satisfactory results which had followed the use of the electronic treatment. It is also his opinion that all methods no matter what they are, when presented to the medical profession, should be thoroughly investigated, thereby improving the healing art.

At the close of the lecture questions both public and private were asked the doctor. Many of those present made the remark that they had an entirely different opinion of this new method from what they had before the lecture.

The latter part of the evening was spent in a social way.

Phillips Academy Wins Harvard Interscholastic Track Carnival

Ray Shepard's well-balanced track team from Phillips Andover Academy, scoring points in thirteen of the fourteen events, won the Harvard Interscholastic track and field carnival Saturday at the Harvard Stadium for the fourth successive year.

Andover won with 55 points; Exeter was second with 38 3-4; Medford high was third with 11; Huntington fourth with 10. The others scored as follows: Worcester academy, 7; Allen Chalmers, 6; University School of Cleveland, 5; Lowell high, 4; Somerville high, Burlington high, Newton high, Milton academy and Cranston high, 3 points each; Lynn Classical, 2 1-2 points; Hyde Park high, 1, and Dean academy, 3-4 of a point.

Andover's victory was its eleventh in the meet and the Blue is the only preparatory or high school that has ever won the meet three or four successive years. Phillips Exeter academy is the only other school that has won the meet two years in succession.

The undergraduate trophy, which is a perpetual trophy, had Andover's name added for the eleventh time since it went into competition, and for winning the meet Andover received a shield.

Charlie Borah, Bill Healey and Jeff Glendinning were the high point scorers of the meet. Borah won the 100 and 220, Healey the 400 and 800, and Glendinning the 1600 and 3200.

Exeter tallied points in every event except the quarter mile and the running high jump. Some were inclined to figure Andover weak in the field events, but it more than held its own in these events obtaining 22 1-2 points while Exeter counted 20 3-4.

The only record that was broken was the half-mile run held jointly by William J. Bingham made in 1909 and Capt. Al O'Neill of Exeter equalled in 1922, of 1m. 59s. O'Neill clipped one-fifth of a second off the old figure and immediately after accomplishing the feat he was congratulated by Bill Bingham, who acted as referee of the carnival.

One other record was equalled when Charles Borah, Jr., of the Andover academy team was clocked in 10s flat in the final heat of the century dash which equals the record held jointly by Arthur Duffy, Worcester academy in 1899; William A. Shick, Andover, in 1900, and Ernest E. Nelson of Volkman school in 1907, and Ralph Colson of Allen-Chalmers school, in 1911. For years 9-4-5s was considered as the record, but Referee Col. George Billings of the B. A. A. never allowed it because of the wind at his back.

It is doubtful if any better exhibition of sprinting by any schoolboy has ever been turned than that of Charles Borah, Jr., nephew of Senator Borah. He was clocked in the first trial heat of the 100-yard dash in 10 1-2s; annexed the first semi-final of 102-5s. over Harrington Moore of Medford high, and captured the final heat in 10s, which equalled the record.

Later he won the first trial heat of the furlong dash in 23 3-5s; the second semi-final in 25 1-5s, and then walked away with the final heat in 22s, which was somewhat of an achievement under the conditions.

There were only two double first-place winners. Borah and William Healey of Andover were the two athletes to accomplish the feat. The former won the century and the furlong dashes and the latter annexed first in the 100-pound shotput and the javelin throw.

Medford high school lived up to expectations by leading the high schools. The Suburban league outfit team scored 11 points and might have added one or two more had not Fred Parsley, its star hurdler, tripped on the third hurdle from the finish and been tossed, which caused him to withdraw from the race. Huntington school was the nearest competitor to Medford high with 10 points.

University School of Cleveland with two entrants managed to gain five points when De Witt McClellan captured first place in the pole vault with a vault of 11 feet. He has done 12 feet in competition.

It required six trial and two semi-final heats before the final heat of the 100-yard dash was staged. It was practically a foregone conclusion that Borah would be victorious and he breezed home a winner by five yards. The final heat of the 220-yard dash was also captured by Borah over Geoffrey Glendinning, his teammate, by nearly two yards.

One of the largest fields of starters that has ever competed in the quarter-mile run was on hand. Gordon Clark, the Huntington school athlete, who won that event at the national interscholastic indoor, once again proved himself the class of the field, winning by about eight yards over E. Johnson of Somerville high, who nosed out C. T. S. Keep of Andover and William L. Halliwell of Milton academy who finished well bunched.

It is doubtful if any better half-mile run for schoolboys was ever seen than the one which Capt. Al O'Neill of Exeter and Bill Dole, the Huntington school athlete, put up. The former took the lead at the outset of the race and clocked in 57 1-2s. at the quarter, with Dooley about three yards behind. They continued in that order, with both athletes running for all that was within them until the home stretch was reached. Then O'Neill uncorked a sprint which carried him to the front and he finished about eight yards ahead of Dooley and broke the old record by one-fifth of a second. P. Rindlaub of Andover and W. C. Taylor of Hyde Park had a close battle for third place, the former sending it out by a scant margin.

One of the surprises of the day came in the low hurdles when Charles T. Elliott, Jr., the indoor champion, was nosed out in the last two yards at the tape, by Worthen Paxton of Andover. In the high hurdles, however, Elliott proved himself superior to the field when he beat R. J. Wood of Andover without much trouble.

Harold Moody of Medford high, who fell down at the B. A. A. indoor schoolboy games, made a wonderful comeback when he led the field in the high jump. He leaped 5 ft. 9 in. which won the event, and he attempted to clear 6 ft. but failed on all three attempts. The running broad jump was captured by Geoffrey Glendinning of Andover who leaped 21 ft. 10 in. and unexpectedly beat John Brandenburg of Exeter.

First place in the hammer throw was taken by John Dalenz of Exeter, who tossed the ball 14 ft. 1 in. and nosed out L. B. Merrill of Cranston high, R. I., who tossed it 140 ft. 10 in. The discus was taken by John Brandenburg of Exeter with a throw of 117 ft. 10 3-4 in., which gave him first place over B. Connors of Allen-Chalmers school.

That the nation needs good roads is admitted by all.

That the Government should build and maintain national highways, to which the States can and will build State trunk roads, they in turn to be fed by county and township roads, is agreed to by most students of the problem.

That they can not afford additional road taxes is contended by many farmers, already overburdened with expense and with prices of farm products below their proper levels.

What is not generally understood is that any campaign of national highway building must inevitably be paid for by the richest section of the country, by the most populous section of the country, by the localities where the greatest amount of tax money can be raised.

It is a fact that when national highways are built they will be paid for, very largely, by the northeast of the United States and the large cities. Yet 90 per cent of all the road traffic in the country will go over them. The farmer will pay about 10 per cent and industry and cities will pay the rest.

The most ardent advocates of national highways in the northeast sections of the land know this. It does not frighten them. They already pay the larger part of the nation's bills. Why should it? If 100 people live in a small town and wish to build a quarter of mile of road to a nearby lake, on the shore of which lives one man, do the hundred people stop because the one man will benefit 100 percent and pay but 1 per cent? They do not. They build the road. The northeastern section of the country, the thickly populated, filled-with-factories localities, will benefit immeasurably from national highways. They will benefit, because the farmer will benefit, and they are happy that he will benefit.

The farmers can not afford not to have national highways when they get 90 per cent of the good and pay but 10 per cent of the cost!

AUTOMOBILE BAN FOR STUDENTS UNJUST

Scholars Need Transport as Well as Workers, Held

The recent resolution passed in the organization meeting of deans and student advisers of Pacific coast colleges and universities, to the effect that pleasure automobiles should not be permitted among students of colleges and universities because they detract from the tendency to study, lessen student democracy and prove real factors in the problem of discipline, is vigorously combatted by eastern educators.

Admitting that too free a use of automobiles may be classed with too free indulgence in dances, athletics, and other student activities, it is contended that banning the automobile is not the way to meet such a condition. It is pointed out that travel, as such, is educational; that while too much travel may interfere with study, it is a condition not to be corrected by removing the means of travel, but by rules local to the student body so indulging. The automobile, the good road, and the quick transportation resulting, make possible the attendance of thousands of students who may live at home who otherwise would crowd dormitories and local habitations until the usefulness of the college or university was destroyed.

Educators with the larger vision point out that all new inventions and all means of the progress of civilization bring their own abuses with them, which have to be corrected by various means, but that the one means which has never proved successful is to get rid of the step forward in order to eliminate the abuses it brings.

YELLOWSTONE TRAIL ADVOCATES SING THE PRAISE OF HIGHWAY.

Western Road Invites Tourists

Advocates of the proposed Atlantic Yellowstone Pacific Highway are met by potent arguments of those who believe that the present Yellowstone Trail is the road of roads for northwest tourist travel. The following, from the Livingstone (Mont.) Enterprise, takes exception to arguments uttered by proponents of the Atlantic Yellowstone Pacific Highway and puts forth the case of the Yellowstone Trail:

"First, although the distance between the Yellowstone Trail and the Lincoln Highway may be 400 miles at the Missouri River, it narrows considerably after crossing that stream; in fact, when Yellowstone Park is reached it serves a territory considerably more compact than that."

"Second, the Yellowstone Pacific Highway cannot traverse any territory whose physical characteristics are more pleasing or more inviting."

"Third, it can not possibly be more comfortable, so far as climatic conditions are concerned, and as for dust, the only dust found on the Yellowstone Trail is blown by the wind from the territory that would be traversed by the Atlantic Yellowstone Pacific Highway."

"Fourth, it cannot permit earlier travel in the spring, for the reason that traffic has been reported on the Yellowstone Trail during the entire winter months, an item evidently with which the new road promoters are unfamiliar."

"Fifth, no section in any part of the country can show any greater variety of agriculture and industries than is to be found along the well marked, extensively traveled, and most popular of all highways, the Yellowstone Trail."

When the United States Government appoints a National Highway Commission and begins to build and maintain national highways, doubtless both of these important roads will be selected as main arteries of travel.

TENNIS COURTS TO OPEN

New Rules For Use of Courts to Be Adopted—Residents of Shawsheen Village to Be Given Preference

Announcement has recently been made by the management of the Balmoral Spa relative to the opening of the tennis courts adjoining Balmoral field. For a number of years these courts have been rented by the hour to the general public. In view of the fact that the removal of the administration offices to Shawsheen has brought about a large increase in the number of residents of the community, the management of the Spa is anxious that residents of Shawsheen should have the preference in using these courts and consequently they recommend a slight change in the method of renting them in the future.

The courts are now being resurfaced and put in perfect condition, and commencing the week of May 19, it is expected that they will be ready for play.

For this season the Balmoral Spa will issue a ticket which will entitle the holder to the privilege of playing on the courts. This ticket will be sold to anyone desiring to purchase it, but non-residents of Shawsheen Village will pay a slightly higher rate.

This ticket will be the total expense for playing upon the courts the entire season but will be subject to the following restrictions: It is understood that a ticket holder may engage a court without charge for the purpose of playing with a guest or a non-member friend but since the membership will be taxed, in fairness, the privileges should be open to ticket-holders as far as possible, and the capacity of the courts will be charged the usual rate per hour.

A family membership ticket may also be obtained entitling all the members of a family to play.

Members will be allowed to make reservations for courts six days in advance and daily sheets for signing up courts will always be accessible at the Spa, but no member will be entitled to more than a total of five hours of reservations during any six-day period. Members' children under fourteen may play without charge mornings or afternoons up to 4 p.m., or providing the courts are not engaged. Courts may not be reserved for children except by special request to the Spa.

These regulations are made for the purpose of insuring for all the residents of the Village a fair amount of tennis and are made necessary by the fact that the number of courts is limited. There is no idea of making arbitrary restrictions and it is expected that all will accept and follow these regulations in a spirit of fair play.

Shawsheen A. A. Entertained at Dinner and Theatre Party

George M. Wallace, president of the Shawsheen A. A., entertained at dinner Wednesday night at Bostons' Cafe for dinner. The Shawsheen Soccer team who finished a successful season by winning the state championship on last Saturday and on the following day defeated the strong J. and P. Coats eleven.

The party of forty guests made the trip to Boston in automobiles and at 6-30 gathered in a private room at Bostons' Cafe for dinner. Following the dinner, Mr. Wallace expressed the appreciation of the athletic association and of the residents of Shawsheen Village for the record the team made and voiced his pride in their list of victories throughout the season. He said that it put Shawsheen on the map in the soccer world and that everything pointed to the team being strong contenders for the American cup next year. He particularly congratulated Charles Watson, the captain, and John MacDonald, the manager, and the men who scored the winning goals in the state championship contest last Saturday. In closing, he referred to the growing support which the team is receiving throughout the state and said that while in the early days of its existence the Shawsheen soccer team had some difficulty in arranging games it was now a drawing card and that soccer was welcomed an opportunity to see it in action. This, he said, reflected an appreciation of the team's last and clean play at all times and that he hoped in the seasons to come they would uphold that splendid record.

Thomas Breidury, agent of the Shawsheen Mills, in which a majority of the team are employed, complimented the players on their record for the season and expressed his confidence in them for another year.

Percy Wilson, president of the state soccer association, brought the greetings of the association to the state champions and said that the association was glad to see a comparatively new organization win the honor of the state championship.

Brief remarks were made by John MacDonald, manager of the team; Charles Watson, captain; James Newell and Alex. Wallace.

Among the toasts was one to William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, who was referred to as one who had made the success of the Shawsheen Soccer team possible.

A group of entertainers gave a short program interspersed with songs and stories by various members of the team until the party adjourned to the theatre.

Balmoral Field to Be Given Over to Baseball

The Soccer Division of the Shawsheen A. A. having finished a very successful season by winning the State Championship on last Saturday and defeating the team of J. and P. Coates on Sunday at Lynn, will play their few remaining games in Lawrence. Commencing on next Saturday Balmoral field will be given over to baseball.

George M. Wallace, president of the Shawsheen A. A., has made arrangements with the Lawrence Independents and throughout the summer they will represent the Shawsheen A. A. in a series of twenty games to be played Saturday afternoons at Balmoral field. A new diamond is being laid out there and on Saturday, May 17, at three o'clock the first game in the series will be played with the Abbot Worsted team of Forge Village. As the Abbot Worsteds have been one of the strongest opponents of the Shawsheen A. A. at soccer, this baseball game will continue a long-standing rivalry.

Manager McDermott of the Lawrence Independents has arranged a schedule with the strongest teams in the state for the Saturday games at Balmoral field and he believes that the series will produce a high standard of baseball for local fans.

Saturday after next, May 24, he has arranged a game with the N. E. Telephone team of Medford, members of the Boston Twilight league. The Lawrence Independents have recently been strengthened by the engagement of Spaulding, a former member of the Red Socks, who will pitch for the Independents during the coming season.

The commodious grandstand at Balmoral field and the excellent turf and playing conditions will make baseball there enjoyable for spectators and players alike, and with the exceptionally fine team that the Independents have this year, playing against opponents of an equally high standard, a series of hard-fought games is assured throughout the summer.

SHAWSHEEN IS WINNER

Defeat Falcos of Holyoke in State Championship Game and J. & P. Coats Team in Benefit Game at Lynn

The Shawsheen Soccer team won the State Championship on last Saturday, when they defeated the Falcos of Holyoke in a 3 to 0 game. The Indians were intended to win, running out only in the closing minutes of the second half when they piled up three clear goals. The visitors failed to penetrate the strong defense of the Shawsheen team and they returned to their homes on the short end of the whitewash score.

Traveling a distance of approximately 125 miles and meeting such a strong opposition as was furnished by Shawsheen, the Falcos waged a wonderful fight before taking the full count, coming as it did ten minutes from time.

Shawsheen, on the day's play, was the most dangerous throughout and deserved to win, yet the plucky and determined stand made by the Falcos on foreign soil could not help meeting the approbation of those who braved the elements to witness the contest.

The Shawsheen forwards shot a cohesive and aggressive attack that sooner or later was not to be denied. It was a thrilling struggle for eighty minutes of the game with the defense of both teams grimly fighting off the spirited attacks. Then, just when everyone expected to see the teams deadlocked in a scoreless tie, the Shawsheens filled the Falcos' goal with three unrelenting shots. The last goal found the Falco backs unable to hold them back longer and the strong garrison finish carried the Villagers off through to the highest honors in state soccer circles.

McDermott caged the first goal, which decided the battle. The two that followed by Jack Corriggan added to the margin, and with so little time left, made the game safe for Shawsheen.

The Villagers had waged several drives on the Falcos' goal, only to be repulsed time and again. But in the closing moments, the Falcos weakened temporarily and before they were able to swing back into their stride, the coveted trophy had been made secure by their fighting foes.

McDermott had plenty of time in which to shoot the ball into the net and he made good care that there was no slip. Immediately the Shawsheen supporters rent the air with their shouts and yells, for they all realized at that time that one goal would win.

The best effort was made by McIntyre when he bested Ross in the goal line and turned in a sharp drive which Hurrell safely cleared. It was one of the few times the Falcos threatened to score.

The weakness of the wingers was freely commented on. Bushnell was the pick of a poor set.

After the game, President Percy A. Wilson of the state association presented the trophy to Captain Charles Watson of the Shawsheen team. President Wilson's remarks were brief but to the point and he warmly congratulated the winners on their fine victory. Captain Watson replied that he was highly pleased to lead a state champion team and expressed the hope that the Falcos, who had proved such good sports, would win next year.

Shawsheen Wins Benefit Game at Lynn

Shawsheen soccer team defeated the J. and P. Coats team of Pawtucket at Lynn on Sunday in a benefit game for Melvin R. Williams' family. The player, in whose honor the fund is being raised, was a leading Lynn goalie who died recently from an injury received in a game.

The game was one of the best exhibitions ever witnessed in Lynn. Many figured the J. and P. Coats team a sure winner, but they had reckoned in vain. The two teams were at their best, both played brilliantly but Shawsheen was the superior and clearly entitled to the honors.

The Shawsheen playing was featured by the splendid exhibition of the intermediate line. Nixon, the new centre half, was the outstanding player on the field. His playing was time and again cheered by the fans, who unstintingly gave credit where credit was due.

Smith and Carrie also played well for Shawsheen, while Tommy Fleming, McAvoy, Adam, Hibbert and Drummond were best for the losers.

Carrie excelled in scoring. He got two of the four Shawsheen goals, while McDermott and Smith scored the other two. Fleming saved the J. and P. Coats team a shutout by
